The Rocky Mountain MS Center is a nonprofit organization that was founded in 1978 as one of the nation’s first comprehensive centers dedicated to the study and treatment of MS. The MS Center was created by doctors and other community leaders who had a deep concern for the losses suffered by people in the prime of their lives due to MS. Our mission is to help people living with MS and their families lead a quality life by providing individualized care, support, education and research.
From our Chairman of the Board

When one person looks at the Rocky Mountain MS Center, they may see many things. Two people may not always see the same thing. A simple glance may only show one part of the MS Center and its capabilities. What truly sets us apart is that second glance. It is that second, deeper look that will truly reveal who we are and what we are capable of achieving.

On the first glance we may be an educational resource for the newly diagnosed and their families. Some see us as an adult day program for MS patients and those suffering from traumatic brain injuries. Some may only notice our growing clinical programs all over the metro area. Others may take notice of our growing research programs. All of these visions are truly worthwhile and merit that second, closer look.

Upon that second look, one may discover that we have expanded our adult day program. We continue to provide the most current educational resources for patients, families and caregivers. We are treating over 6,000 patients through our various clinics. We have participated in many studies and clinical trials and currently we have twenty-nine studies in process. We are working to pass legislation to make these trials even better and lay the foundation for better treatment and research. They may take notice of our assisting with everything from filing for disability, counseling services, to creating nutritional plans for our clients. I would hope that the hard work of truly dedicated staff, volunteers and doctors would not go unseen.

You may wonder what I see when I look at the Rocky Mountain MS Center. I see hope. I see the hope that comes from grateful patients on that new medication or our adult day client when they get that new wheelchair approved. I have witnessed the power that comes from the counseling our staff provides and the relief that can come from a visit with our neurologists. I have seen the tears of joy that come from knowing that the Rocky Mountain MS Center is the best friend and advocate a patient with MS can have in this fight.

You all have made this possible with your support of the Center over the last year. I thank you on behalf on all of those touched by the Center. Our task is far from over. We still have a long way to go in our journey but that light at the end of the tunnel is our hope for a better future. I trust you see the hope of which I speak. If you don’t see the better future ahead, call on us and allow us to show you. Have a conversation with our team of neurologists, our staff or our any of our volunteers. Better still, talk to someone who has been treated by our team. I assure you, you will feel that hope in every word.

From our Medical Director

Dear Board Members, Colleagues and Friends of the Rocky Mountain MS Center;

I am approaching the end of my third year as a member of the RMMSC team. But to tell you the truth much of the last three years is a blur. So many things fell into place to provide the “perfect storm” scenario resulting in a remarkable rate of growth of the clinical, clinical research and basic research programs affiliated with the RMMSC.

Indeed, we are now unequivocally among the largest and most productive MS programs in the world. We have particular strength in our clinical programs and clinical research programs. But our collaboration with the University of Colorado School of Medicine is bringing with it important connections with basic researchers in the areas of the immunology and virology of MS. And there are also labs at the University of Colorado School of Medicine focused on developing remyelinating therapies for MS using stem cells.

Our clinical programs for MS patients and their families, including those at the University Hospital, Denver Health Hospital, MCPN clinic, and Veterans Administration Hospital will reach 6,000 patient visits this year. Our clinical team includes five adult neurologists, one pediatric neurologist, two physician assistants, one advanced practice nurse, two RNs, two medical assistants and Dr. Hebert, our specialist on the physical therapy of MS. By January of 2012, we will establish the RMMSC Clinic for Childhood Onset MS at the Children’s Hospital in collaboration with Dr. Teri Schreiner. Our program now needs to evolve into dedicated space where we can integrate our programs, implement tele-health programs and disease management strategies, and develop an integrated and comprehensive approach to health care for MS patients and their families. In this way we can change the model of care for MS to maximize health and well being while using the most effective therapies in the safest way possible.
Our clinical research program is among the largest in the world. We currently have over 30 active studies, and have completed work on another 35 over the last three years. We have eight professional study coordinators, numerous students and volunteers and three core teams supporting the clinical research program. There are over 900 MS patients participating in the clinical research program today. Studies we have worked on for several years are about to bear fruit with three more therapies about to enter the clinic over the next 12 to 18 months. These will include two new oral agents that have very good safety profiles and appear to work through a new mechanism that does not involve suppressing the immune system. Rather they appear to work by protecting nerve and myelin forming cells from the injurious effects of the inflammatory attack on the CNS that characterizes MS. In other words they appear to be neuroprotective. Thus the treatment of MS continues to rapidly evolve such that we can fundamentally change the course of MS in most patients. Our primary goal over the coming years will be to determine the best therapy or combination of therapies for each individual MS patient. From this standpoint the future is very promising for rapid advances in improved efficacy and safety in the treatment of MS.

However, we still do not have a cure. To pursue this we need to develop a translational research laboratory focused on MS that brings together all our strengths. I have reason to believe it is time to re-approach the treatment of MS using a vaccine-based approach designed to reprogram the immune system to re-establish the normal control mechanisms that prevent the inappropriate immune attack on the central nervous system in MS. My colleagues have other ideas too. We are well positioned to make advances here because of the very broad base of experience of our faculty. At least one of us, and generally more, has worked directly with every therapy currently approved and many that failed. From this experience comes insight we must build on. Building this translational laboratory will be a collaboration between the University of Colorado and the Rocky Mountain MS Center. It will synergize with many other very successful laboratories that already exist within the University of Colorado.

I am not aware of any other MS program that has grown so dramatically in such a short time. But our work is not done. There is still much to accomplish before we can finally remove MS as a threat to our loved ones and friends. But major advances are no longer ten years in the future, rather they are occurring every few months.

The above is in the context of the ongoing successes of KADEP, our education programs, the Disability Assessment Clinic, The Hydrotherapy Program, our MS Counseling Program and our publications. Indeed, through the efforts of Pat Daily, InforMS has become the major education resource for our patients who continually tell me how much they benefit from and appreciate this publication.

Thank you all for your support of all of the RMMSC programs. We look forward to continuing the effort with your help and participation.

Medical Director
Rocky Mountain MS Center

From our Executive Director

Dear Friends of the MS Center

What a year 2010 was! By far the most exciting development was that we managed to purchase a facility, renovate and move our specialized adult day program (KADEP) and administrative offices. Our new home is the Rocky Mountain MS Center at Vista Grande, located at the Boulder Turnpike (Highway 36) and Sheridan Boulevard. It is aptly named “Vista Grande” as it sits on a rise, and has a view of the complete front range of the Rocky Mountains. None of this would have been possible without the generous gifts of time, talent and treasure from people who believe in our work and mission.

Once again, Adam Writer tops the list of those to be thanked. Adam helped us find the right facility, helped us negotiate the purchase, and even put up the earnest money. When it was time to paint, and funds were running short, Adam and his family found a way to get all the paint and supplies donated. Adam and a host of volunteers showed up to get the walls painted. The MS Center was founded by Adam’s father, N. Daren Writer in 1978, and Adam continues to honor his father’s memory by his dedicated service.

The Kenneth King Foundation provided the lead gift for our new home, and was quickly joined by the Anschutz Foundation, Johnson Foundation and the Colorado Garden Show Inc. Many generous individuals provided support and to date in 2011 – we have raised over 1 million dollars for the facility purchase and renovation. Colorado State Bank & TRUST helped us with the additional financing we needed, and we hope that by the end of 2011 (and with your help!) we might be able to retire our loan.

The RMMSC has continued to meet its mission on all fronts—I hope you will celebrate the accomplishments we have made in providing the best in MS specialty care, conducting clinical research in multiple sclerosis and providing our constituency with the most current information to enable them to make informed choices about their care. We have continued to walk the journey with individuals and their families, through counseling and support services, MS 101 for the newly diagnosed, and by helping individuals with the very complex process of disability applications. Our quarterly magazine and monthly e-MS News electronic newsletter, keep people informed. Our hydrotherapy programs keep people with MS active and moving, and have created a community of supportive friends.

We are proud of our intensely “hands on” approach to MS care— that we work alongside individuals with MS and their families, and walk with them from the first days of diagnosis, through the challenges that some individuals face as disability becomes a reality. We are proud that we can meet the needs of those with MS who have no healthcare insurance or who have Medicaid or Medicare through our MS specialty clinics at Potomac Street and at Denver Health. We are also excited about the amazing advances in research—that we are actively a part of—with a new generation of disease-modifying agents that can effectively stop the disease in most individuals. AND we know that we can do more, with your help, to assure that the next generation will not have to live with the challenges of MS.

The economy has provided challenges for all of us—and we are so grateful for the generosity of our community of friends without whom we could not continue to meet our mission. We can confidently state that when it comes to MS—the best is yet to be—and with your help, we will honor that commitment.

We would love to show you what is happening at the RMMSC—either here at the Vista Grande campus—or at the Anschutz Medical Campus. We also welcome your feedback and comments, and pride ourselves on being responsive to the changing needs of the MS community. Feel free to call us anytime—303-788-4030. We are here for you.

Founded in 1978, Rocky Mountain Multiple Sclerosis Center (the MS Center) is one of the nation’s first comprehensive centers dedicated to the study and treatment of multiple sclerosis. The MS Center’s mission is to improve the lives of people living with multiple sclerosis and their families by providing care, support, education and research. The MS Center accomplishes its mission through a variety of programs, activities, collaboration and outreach.

Care
MS Specialty Care
The Rocky Mountain MS Center at Anschutz Medical Campus commenced on August 1st of 2008. Through an extraordinary and powerful collaboration, the RMMSC and the University of Colorado Denver and the University of Colorado Hospital have joined together to form an MS Center of Excellence. This marriage of experience and exceptional work in patient care, education, support and cutting-edge research distinguished both organizations for many years and creates a world-class comprehensive center that serves the entire Rocky Mountain region, with national and international reach. State of the art medical care is provided by MS specialty neurologists; Dr. Timothy Vollmer, Dr. John Corboy, Dr. Jeffrey Bennett, Dr. Don Gilden, and Dr. Augusto Miraville. The clinic is currently providing 6,000 patient visits/year. For patients who are uninsured or underinsured, the Rocky Mountain MS Center has an affiliation with Metro Community Providers Network to provide MS specialty care. The RMMSC at Potomac Street opened in August of 2008, and provides MS specialty services four day/week at the MCPN Clinic at 700 Potomac Street. We also have an affiliated clinic at Denver Health and at the Veteran’s Administration Hospital.

Specialized Adult Day Care Services
The King Adult Day Enrichment Program (KADEP) serves younger adults who have moderate to severe disability caused by neurological illnesses or trauma. KADEP is designed to enhance wellness, maintain or improve functional status, and provide opportunities for socialization, personal development and enjoyment. Despite living with chronic and progressive illness, greater than 75% of the clients at the program maintain or improve their functional status. KADEP participant days totaled 14,332 in 2010.

Specialty Care Clinics

Specialty-care clinics are designed to help multiple sclerosis patients manage specific issues related to MS. The MS Disability Clinic provides evaluations for individuals anticipating disability applications and assistance navigating this challenging process. Fatigue Management is a six week course offered quarterly to teach a variety of energy conservation strategies. The Rocky Mountain MS Center also offers MS Hydrotherapy programs providing maintenance rehabilitation for over 120 individuals living with MS.

Support

The MS Center provides counseling and support services for people with MS and their families. Through individual and family counseling, support groups and seminars, the Center offers a range of resources to address individual needs. Every month the MS 101 class is offered to the newly diagnosed patient and their families. The MS Center Call Center provides a centralized place for individuals to get questions answered and referrals provided.

Education

The MS Center conducts a variety of programs to educate those with multiple sclerosis, their families, the general public and professionals providing services and care for individuals with multiple sclerosis. The MS Center conducts a variety of public seminars and maintains an interactive internet website at www.mscenter.org. The website added a new Living Well landing page in 2010, which provides current patient education information. The MS Center has produced several patient handbooks, and publications on Complementary and Alternative Medicine (CAM) and multiple sclerosis. The MS Navigator is a publication that provides patients with a personalized health record to help them more effectively manage their healthcare. The MS Center also provides professional education opportunities, annual Providers Summit which results in a MS Providers Directory. Additional educational resources include pamphlets, written materials and videos. Our quarterly magazine, InforMS, is mailed to 16,000 recipients. and emailed to an additional 22,000. Every three weeks we send an electronic newsletter called e.MS News to 22,000 households. The electronic newsletter features breaking research information, and opportunities to participate in MS clinical research.

Research

Clinical Trials
The MS Center engages in a variety of research projects designed to improve the lives of individuals living with multiple sclerosis. Our new Medical Director, Dr. Timothy Vollmer has quickly established a productive and effective Clinical Research Team at the RMMSC at Anschutz Medical Campus. Faculty initiated clinical research fuels the search for safer and more effective treatments and combination therapies to treat MS. In 2010, over 20 new studies were initiated. Dr. Vollmer is also moving ahead with several investigator initiated protocols, which will more quickly provide patients with safe and effective treatment options.

Brain and Tissue Bank
In addition, the MS Center houses one of the world’s largest fresh brain-tissue banks, essential to research into the cause and the cure of multiple sclerosis conducted around the world. The Brain and Tissue Bank is funded in large part by a research grant from the NMSS. In 2010, the Tissue Bank moved to the biorepository on the AMC Campus. MS and Control tissue are retrieved, stored and provided to researchers from around the world studying MS.

Auxiliary Organizations
The MS Center has two auxiliary organizations which support the mission through their awareness, fundraising and community building efforts. The Guild has a signature event called “Old Bags” and the MS Young Professional Network (MS YPN) organizes networking and fundraising events to benefit the Center.

A gift of support to the Rocky Mountain MS Center makes it possible for us to fulfill our mission and purpose. As you consider your year-end gifts to charity, we hope that you will put the Rocky Mountain MS Center at the top of your list, and also consider naming us in your will or estate plans. By participating in our fundraising efforts, you make a difference in the lives of the people we serve.

Want to get involved in other ways as well? Volunteer and provide critical support through direct “hands on” work. Become a member of The Rocky Mountain MS Center Guild – a group of women dedicated to increasing awareness and raising money to support the Center. Or join our MS Young Professionals Network – a co-ed group of younger adults dedicated to networking, raising awareness and supporting the Rocky Mountain MS Center.

Together we can change the way we think about and treat MS, and protect the futures of those living with the disease.
